PARK COMMITTEE REPORTS PROGRESS IN IMPROVEMENTS

At a meeting of the city council last Monday, Mayor H. H. Smith presiding, the park committee reported the cleaning and grading of the top portion of the Daly City park, and that they have enlisted the services of several people who make a practice of laying out public parks, for advice. A working plan will be perfected in the near future, after all plans and suggestions are secured. The committee thanked the Lions Club of our city for their efforts in helping to bring about these needed public improvements.

A request from the Pacific Gas and Electric Company for permission to move a pole on Templeton avenue and Peoria street was granted for the good of the service.

The light committee reported several requests for large lights on Mission street, and reported that no action will be taken until after the annexation election in Colma, which may change the lighting district materially.

After all the business had been completed and the bills and salaries for the month had been ordered paid, the council adjourned out of respect to Undersheriff Larrecou, who was murdered while on duty, and later met at Company No. 2 fire house to inspect the proposed improvements to their fire apparatus, which was sanctioned, after the approval of the chief and fire commissioners.

The next meeting of the city council will be held on October 10, when all citizens are invited to attend and learn how and why your city is progressing.

PARENTS ATTEND SCHOOL AT NIGHT

The Parents' Night held at Jefferson Union high school last Friday night, which was attended by a large number of the parents of the pupils of that school, proved an unqualified success, judging by the expressions of approval coming from a number of the parents.

As announced, the purpose of the meeting was to enable the parents to get better acquainted with the high school, with the teachers, and with one another, and it is believed this was accomplished in a great measure. While the parents of the district were the pupils for the evening, they were not called upon to recite, but the principal and teachers explained the work done in each class, the work performed by the boys and girls of Jefferson high school, and the parents were privileged to ask any questions they desired.

This Parents' Night idea seems to have been an excellent one, and will undoubtedly result in benefit to the pupils, parents and faculty of Jefferson Union high school.

ENTERTAINS IN HONOR OF EIGHTH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. A. J. Johnson, of 447 Winchester street, gave a very pretty party last Friday afternoon in honor of her daughter Phyllis. Many little friends came with pretty gifts to wish Phyllis a happy birthday. Games were played which delighted the children and after a pleasant afternoon the guests were taken to the dining room, where the table was prettily decorated in lavender and orange crepe paper with little baskets to match. At each place was a little gift, a French doll made out of a lead pencil. The little chocolate candy animals were also admired by the youngsters, and to top it all there was a large birthday cake, made by Grandma Stang, with eight candles on it.

Those present were: Millicent Johnson, Phyllis Johnson, Virginia Telleman, Frances Olson, Margaret Steele, Ann Steele, Julia Steele, Georgie Cone, Betty Cone, Frances Cook, Milton Oliotti, Edith Oliotti, Anna Coulter, Arthur Born, of Parkside, John B. Grimaldi, of New Orleans, Josephine Rawie, Norma Evans, Dretta Wilson, Margaret Kohlman, Zelda Kohlman, Mrs. J. De Christena, of New Orleans, Mrs. I. Roberts, Mrs. L. Stang, Mrss. A. P. Johnson.

Enjoy Being Up in the Air

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Bennett and family, accompanied by Mrs. Carrie Wood and Miss Evelyn Archer, visited with Mr. and Mrs. David Burness at their ranch in Sebastopol on Sunday and had the pleasure of an aeroplane ride, Mr. Anton De Cleava having piloted each one for half an hour over Santa Rosa, Sebastopol and Petaluma in his airplane. Colin Bennett has the flying bug and he was up twice. They all enjoyed it very much and wouldn't have missed it for anything, and hope to have another trip in the air in the near future.

ENJOYS MOTOR TRIP TO BRITISH COLUMBIA

Where rolls the highway? Looking backward only a few years, there were few good roads where now we glide smoothly in our automobiles on perfect pavements for thousands of miles with scarcely a detour to retard our progress. This is true for the entire stretch from Tijuana, Mexico, through California, Oregon and Washington to Vancouver, British Columbia.

Leaving home August 3, we journeyed to the British Columbia city, then retraced our trail of perfect highway to Portland, Oregon. Of this part of the journey so much has been written that one can hardly suggest a new idea of the trip.

Vancouver is the visionary Meca of the thirsty travelers from the States, but when there the story greatly diminishes, for it is actually harder to get the alleged genuine article than it is to get "moon" at home of almost if not quite as good a quality as the B. C. product. The government liquor stores are patronized by those having $3 permits, so the transient traveler generally depends upon the bootleggers and gamble with fate upon the quality. There are, however, beer halls, but their goods seem far short of the guaranteed "10 per cent," so you can just consider yourself fortunate if you decide to wait until you get home to imbibe in "near beer," that seems to be getting "nearer" as time elapses. This will give you one glorious satisfaction, in that you are not flimflamed.

A visit to Vashon Island is out of the ordinary. It is reached by ferry from Point Defiance, Tacoma. We remained there three days, digging the finest of clams, eating delicious fruit and generally enjoying the insistant hospitality of friends.

From Vashon Island we took another ferry to Seattle. There we met a lifelong friend, and later on our return to Tacoma over the highway we met several other friends, possessing that sort of genuine welcome that makes one really glad that the world has such characters.

From Portland we traversed the famous Columbia River Highway to Pendleton, Oregon, thence north to Spokane, Washington, visiting a son who has a very responsible position in the printing department of the Spokesman-Review, a large daily paper.

Leaving Spokane we went to Moscow, Idaho, where in 1886, when Idaho was a Territory, we established the Star of Idaho, that is still flourishing as the Daily Star-Mirror. Moscow is the university city of Idaho. Continuing our journey, we passed through Lewiston, Idaho, Asotin and Walla Walla, Washington, to Pendleton.

From Pendleton we began the ascent of the Blue Mountains over the old "Oregon Trail," that in fact ends at Portland, Oregon, and began at Omaha, Nebraska, in 1843. The highway is excellent and the hills not steep, so we enjoyed a pleasant ride to Baker City, where we camped on the banks of the Powder river.

There are many points of interest on the Oregon Trail all the way to Salt Lake City, but space limits most description. Near La Grande there is a lake of probably ten acres of very hot water. Of this lake is told an interesting pioneer story of an emigrant who arrived here in the dusk of the evening and sent his son for water. The youth soon returned, saying: "Dad, let's turn back, for hell is not half a mile away." It should be remembered that where now rolls a fine highway there was a wandering trail in 1843.

Salt Lake City will always retain its magnificent interest. 'Tis unquestionably one of the most beautiful cities in America, with very wide streets that seem to glorify the foresight of Brigham Young when he laid it out seventy-five years ago, so long before the automobile.

Fortunately for Ralph, Saltair did not close its Sunday season until the day after our arrival, so he experienced a swim in the water in which you cannot sink.

From Salt Lake Ctiy we motored south over a sure-enough desert for a hundred miles to Wendover, Utah, then entered Nevada, making the trip from Salt Lake City to Truckee, 556 miles, in two days. The roads in Utah and Nevada are in excellent condition.

Except the weather at Truckee, there is not much more of real interest. We always camped in auto camp cabins, and as we stopped here were told to drain our radiator, and well we did, for on the following morning a half inch of ice had frozen on a lard bucket of water that we had left outside, and the oil in our engine was so congealed that only a friendly hill enabled us to get started, and then we were 90 minutes getting to the summit, a distance of 10 miles, but there we coasted several miles down this side of the Sierra Nevada mountains, after which we had no further trouble.

My only companion on the trip was my 16-year-old son Ralph. He caught sixteen nice Rainbow trout in Toutle river, Washington on his sixteenth birthday, August 11, and otherwise immortalized himself by driving nearly the entire distanct of 4,566 miles.

UNDERSHERIFF LARRECOU KILLED IN PISTOL BATTLE WITH BANDITS

Undersheriff Pierre Larrecou of San Mateo county was shot to death last Sunday night in a pistol duel with a holdup man whom he killed with a shot from his own revolver as he crumpled to the floor.

The dead bandit has been identified as George B. Miller, chauffeur and gambler, who was recently dismissed from the service of Hugh B. Porter, wealthy Atherton resident.

Undersheriff Larrecou and State Traffic Officer Elgin Kreiss were seated at a table in the kitchen of a cafe owned by Angelo Zimminini on Atherton avenue in Menlo Park, when there came a knock at the front door of the cafe and Zimminini went to open it. As he did so, two men stepped in, both pointing guns at him.

The first bandit to enter was the room was Miller. He pressed his gun against Zimminini's chest and forced him back into the room, while the other man held the patrons who were in the room at bay with his gun.

Miller then walked into the kitchen, where he saw Larrecou and Kreiss. He paused for just a second, then he began blazing away with his revolver at the seated officers.

The first shot fired by the bandit struck Larrecou in the right leg. The wounded officer drew his revolver and began firing at the bandit, shooting him twice, once in the head and again in the body. Miller wavered, but he continued firing, sending two bullets into Larrecou's abdomen, Larrecou slipping to the floor, death being almost instantaneous.

As Miller made for the door through which he had just come, blood streaming from his face, Kreiss fired two shots, and as the bandit made a last desperate effort to escape from the room he fell on his face and was dead when he was reached by the occupants of the room. The other bandit fled at the sight of his companion lying on the floor, and at this writing is still at large.

It is thought that the two men who attacked the officers when they entered the cafe are the two who have staged a number of holdups in San Mateo county recently. However, a Filipino cook who was locked in a bathroom of the home of B. U. Brandt, of San Mateo, several weks ago by two bandits, was taken by officers to view the body of the slain bandit, and was unable to identify him as one of the men who robbed the Brandt home. Pete Lera, whose place of business in Millbrae was entered by two thugs, could not identify Miller as one of the men.

Millers' companion is described as tall, slender, dark and well dressed. Posses are searching every nook and corner for him.

Undersheriff Pierre Larrecou was recently married, and resided in San Carlos. On Sunday Mrs. Larrecou took their automible and drove to San Jose to visit overnight with relatives, and in her absence the popular official invited Officer Kreiss to be his guest at dinner. The young bride was prostrated upon being informed of the death of her husband.

In addition to his widow, Larrecou is survived by his mother, who resides in Menlo Park, by a sister and two brothers. He was a veteran of the World war, and a member of the Native Sons, Elks and Odd Fellows.

Funeral services were held for the brave officer Wednesday morning at 9:30 from the home on Cherry street, San Carlos, under the auspices of the Odd Fellows lodge of which he was a member, interment following in the cemetery at Menlo Park.

Whether Larrecou was deliberately murdered, or whether he was killed incidental to a holdup, is still a debated question in police and official circles in Redwood City.

Some believe that the undersheriff had been carefully followed and killed, while others cling to the theory that the bandits simply recognized him when they intended to stage a holdup, and knowing his fearlessness and realizing the futility of a complete escape from Larrecou, opened fire in a desperate effort to shoot their way out.

MAN OF THE JUNGLE HERE SATURDAY EVE

Through the untiring efforts of Crocker Chapter, Order of De Molay, "The Man of the Jungle" will be presented this Saturday, October 1, at 8 o'clock, at Jefferson Union high school auditorium. This three act play was secured through the services of the Banner Play Co.

The play has all the mystified atmosphere of the jungle and carries you through the jungle to the palatial homes of the idle rich. It is a play that deserves the presence of all. There is romance for the girls, as well as thrills for all, and it should make a night of clean entertainment.

Crocker Chapter, Order of De Molay, plans to make itself one of the best equipped chapters in the state. So come to the play and help the chapter realize its plans.

HOUSE-WARMING SURPRISE

A house-warming in the form of a surprise party was tendered Mr. and Mrs. George Lagomarsino at their beautiful new home at 36 Oliver street, last Wednesday evening. The evening was spent in dancing and playing games, followed by refreshments served in the social hall. The beautiful wrought iron fernery was presented to Mrs. Lagomarsino by the guests. Those who enjoyed the evening were: Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bignotti, Mr. and Mrs. Brenan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sermattei, Mrs. A. M. Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. Depaoli, Mr. and Mrs. Risso, Mrs. J. Calway, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sweeney, Mrs. E. Rice, Mrs. M. Castel, Mrs. Charles Hickey, Miss E. Depaoli, Mr. R. Pellegrini, Misses Evelyn Lagomarsino, Millie, Jeanette and Doris Lagomarsino, Wlil and Ray Sweeney, Leslie and Evelyn Brenan.

AUTOS COLLIDE, CATCH FIRE

Last Wednesday at 6:30 p. m., an alarm was turned in at Westlake avenue and Willits street. On answering the call, the firemen found the fire was caused by two machines meeting in a head-on collision on Sloat boulevard. The blaze was extinguished by Chief Kennedy with a hand chemical.

DALY CITY FIREMEN PICNIC NEXT SUNDAY

The Daly City Volunteer Firemen and the Veteran Firemens' Association will hold their annual picnic at Lovchen Garden, Colma, next Sunday, October 2.

The Daly City Fire Department is one of the oldest as well as one of the most progressive organizations in the city, and while the first object of the department is fire fighting, as well as fire prevention, you will also find that whenever there is a progressive movement or any movement for the betterment of the city, you will find the fire department at the forefront.

To enlighten some of the people who are not familiar with the facts, I want to say that the department is absolutely volunteer. No one in the department receives one cent of pay for their services, yet no matter whether is be day or night, fair or stormy weather, when the siren blows these men stand ready and willing to go.

I believe that the people should turn out and support the firemen on October 2.

There will be games, dancing, bowling and all sorts of amusements, not to mention the good things to eat.

Come one and all to Lovchen Garden on October 2, and show the firemen you are willing to support the men of your city who stand ready at all times to combat that deadly deamon, Fire.

G. R. AUGUSTIEN,
Chairman Board of Fire Commissioners.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES INSTALL ELECTRIC CLOCK SYSTEM

The regular meeting of the Jefferson school district trustees was held at the Vista Grande school last Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, Trustees Augustien, Sweeney and Nava and also Prof. Savage being present.

The current bills were ordered paid and the trustees also ordered the installation of an electric clock system installed in the Crocker school.

The contractor reported the completion of the addition to the General Pershing school, and the trustees will make their final inspection before their acceptance.

WEDDING SCHEDULED FOR SATURDAY AT ST. MAXIMUS

Miss Grace Johnstone, a popular young lady of this city, will be united in marriage to Joseph Baciagalupi, also of Daly City, by Rev. Donohoe, at St. Maximus church, on Saturday.

TANFORAN RACING MEET POSTPONED

Announcement that the race meeting scheduled to open October 29 at Tanforan has been postponed until the spring was made yesterday by the San Francisco Jockey Club.

Edward W. Mills, who represents Judge Joseph A. Murphy, general manager of the racing association, said that it would be impossible to hold the meet this fall, as the test case on the certificate plan of conducting races is still in the courts.

If the present action of the District Court of Appeals is favorable to the Jockey Club, it is planned to have the races start in February. It is expected the session will be for thirty-seven days, as originally announced.

Judge Murphy is presiding steward at the Hawthorne meeting, and at the wind-up at the Chicago track next week, may come to San Francisco.

CYCLISTS SUE TRUCK DRIVER FOR BIG SUM

Injuries alleged to have been received in an accident at South San Francisco last May are made the basis of separate suits filed in the Superior Court at Redwood City yesterday by C. Lodalini and Paul Martini, of San Francisco, against Fred Lombardi, of South San Francisco, for a total of more than $40,000. Both plaintiffs were riding on motorcycles which collided with a truck driven by Lombardi at a crossing of Baden avenue, May 30, it is alleged. Lodalini asks $25,000 for injuries which have resulted in paralysis, he says. Martini asks $15,000 for the fracture of an arm and injuries to his head. A total of $3,500 is asked for hospital bills and damage to property.

ZONING ORDINANCE UPHELD BY COURT

Mrs Mabel Coryell, wealthy society woman of Atherton, has lost her suit against Mayor Matt W. Harris and other Atherton trustees to void a zoning ordinance of the town which prohibits subdivision of the Coryell estate for business purposes. The suit was brought by Mrs. Coryell in an effort to break the ordinance insofar as it relates to the Coryell property. In a decision handed down yesterday, Judge George H. Buck agreed with the findings of the planning commission and ruled for judgment in favor of the defendants.

KITCHEN SHOW GIVEN FOR PROSPECTIVE BRIDE

On Friday evening, September 23, a delightful kitchen shower was given for Miss Winifred O'Rourk by the ladies of St. John's Episcopal church, at the Plath home, 210 Lawrence avenue. Many beautiful and useful gifts were received. Those attending from Daly City were Mrs. B. Meyers, Mrs. H. Faulkner and Mrs. Jean O'Rourk.

"THEY WATCHED HIM" IS TEXT OF SERMON

Sermon delivered by Father James Donohoe at St. Maximus church on Sunday, September 25:

Christ wanted the art and science of living to keep pace with the progress of other arts and sciences. He planned to have human conduct improve in order that men might lead better and happier lives than they knew under paganism. He felt that a sound and universally accepted code of ethics would promote man's moral progress and welfare on earth. It would go a long way toward forming a healthy public opinion on all moral questions and give the world a standard by which human actions could be gauged.

In reading each Sunday gospel we readily see how Christ gave men this code for right living. One time He takes a little child and examples innocence and purity. He tells us that unless we become as that child we can not enter the Kingdom of Heaven. Again He points to the farmer of the field, toiling and sweating that his harvest may be great. In like manner must we be diligent and zealous for our soul's salvation. At another time He centers our attention on the birds of the air and flowers of the field—to teach us that we can survive by having confidence in the power and goodness of God.

Surrounded by Pharisees, holding their attention, He thought it opportune to teach them a few principles of His code. They saw Him gain favor in the eyes of His followers. Their pride was offended because He had an enviable reputation by His many miracles and mercies. A man who needed His help stepped out of the crowd; it was the Sabbath. They feel that at last He is placed in a dilemma; that they have found a flaw

ANNEXATION PLAN WILL BE VOTED ON BY COLMA CITIZENS

The people of Colma are enthused over the coming election for annexation to Daly City, on account of the great benefits they expect from the annexation, such as sewers, water for domestic purposes, hydrants for fire protection and cheaper fire insurance rates.

Little difficulty is anticipated in securing a favorable vote for the annexation. The petition asking for the election was signed by over half the voters in the Colma district. Many more expressed their wish to sign the petition, but it was not necessary for them to do so.

Those who are most favorable to the annexation plan declare that the people of Colma should exert every effort to see that all interested go to the polls on Saturday, October 8, at Jefferson Hall, and thus assure the approval of the annexation.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

We are fortunate in having secured such a splendid program for Sunday evening at the Daly City Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. Riley will give us an illustrated lecture on "The Philippine Islands." He has lectured in Central church, San Francisco, now known as the Temple church, also in many of the leading churches of the East Bay section. Dr. Riley has spent over five years in the Philippines, so with his knowledge of the Islands and his wonderful set of pictures, we are promised a most interesting evening. Tell your friends about it and be sure not to miss it. Mrs. Olson will sing for us, and Mr. Jack Sanderson, accompanied by Mrs. Secour, will play a special violin number.

The Sunday school is growing rapidly and we are now not so far from the hundred mark. We have classes for all ages, from 2 to 102, so you are all invited.

The pastor's subject for next Sunday morning will be "Character or Reputation; Which?"

During the next few months we are planning on having special events that will be of interest to all, each Sunday evening. Watch the paper for announcements of our services.

The Friendly Indians are having a paper drive Saturday morning, for the purpose of raising money for their organization. If you have any surplus paper, kindly notify one of the members of the Friendly Indian organization.

LITTLE MISS ENJOYS HER SECOND BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Al. Parmisano was hostess on Sunday afternoon at a birthday party given at her home, 63 Irvington street, in honor of the birthday of her little daughter Geraldine. Little Miss Geraldine was the recipient of many lovely gifts. The dining room and table were prettily decorated in pink. In the center of the table was a large pink paper rose concealing many pretty gifts for the little guests. The birthday cake was also there with its two little candles. Those who enjoyed the afternoon were Florence Rancatore, Evelyn Rancatore, Inez Benassini, Rita Benassini, Marie Reardon, Corinne Parmisano, Stanley Parmisano, Geraldine Parmisano, Frank Rancatore, Tom Rancatore, Mrs. M. Rancatore, Mrs. August Parmisano, Mrs. Peter Benassini, Mrs. Anthony Parmisano, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parmisano, Mr. and Mrs. James Reardon, Mr. and Mrs. August Benassini, Miss Rose Parmisano, Miss Vivian Benassini, Mr. San Parmisano, Mr. Louis Parmisano.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

Three new 100 watt electric lights have been installed by the Jefferson Union high school trustees, in the back of Jefferson Uinon high school, and splendidly illuminate the entire rear of the structure.

Very rapid progress is being made by J. P. Holland & Company in the grading of the athletic field, and it is expected that the work will be completed within two weeks. When completed this will give Jefferson Union high school one of the best athletic fields in the state of California.

The attendance in the night school classes is excellent. Those who contemplate entering any of the classes should make application to Mr. Ferguson at the earliest opportunity.

Football is in full swing at the high school. Last week the local team defeated a team from Polytecnic high school of San Francisco.

SPLENDID RALLY DAY AT GRACE CHURCH

It was rally day last Sunday at Grace Presbyterian church, and the school, with Superintendent William Rae, had planned for some time in arranging for the day. A goal of 200 was set and all were enthusiastic in reaching that number, for the highest number yet recorded in the history of the school was 180.

A committee of twelve boys and girls had been appointed and they worked faithful and true, and when the roll was called it was found that 204 were present.

Four of the good women of the church had been asked to decorate the house with flowers, and they did themselves proud, having the greatest array of flowers ever seen in the church.

Mrs. McNair sang a beautiful solo after the opening musical numbers by Miss Mildred Swan at the piano and Jack and Walter Parker with their violins.

The primary department marched up from their room on the lower floor, singing "Like the Stars of the Morning," and they came to the front bearing the American flag beside the Christian flag, and it produced a deep impression.

Mr. George Savage made a short and pointed address as chairman of the board of trustees of the church, being followed by Mrs. George Archer as president of the Ladies Aid, and by Mr. Tom Swan, as a member of the board of Elders.

The closing of the program was a beautiful flower play, by Miss Katherine McKeown, Miss Sybil Riddell, Mr. Howard Roof, Carl Rebich and Eddie McKella, and it was a splendid lesson on human nature and the love of flowers.

The crowd was great. the flowers grand, the spirit and fellowship was excellent and the superintendent and pastor wish to thank all for their help in making this a real day for the church.

Grace church regrets very much in losing Mr. and Mrs. Tompsett and son Larry, who are leaving this week for Los Angeles to make their home. Mrs. Tompsett has been the faithful superintendent of the primary department for a long time and will be greatly missed by the little tots as well as the church.

New song books were purchased for the school during the past week and add very much to the interest in the worship.

Mr. Rae, the superintendent, has offered to purchase new lights for the main auditorium, and we hope before long to have them installed and thus beautify the auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McNair are moving this week from their home at 973 Hanover street to the end of Hanover street on the hill overlooking Crocker Tract.

CHAS. H. GATCHELL, Minister.

New life new color for your living room

A modern principle in floor and table lamp construction improves home lighting

Soft, mellow, shadowless light evenly spread throughout the room—ample light for the whole family to read, write, sew or play cards—light that brings out the rich colors of draperies and furniture—light that is kind to your family's eyes.

Such lighting is now possible through a new principle in floor and table lamp construction. This new principle banishes the harmful gloom and glare that is so common with ordinary lamps.

The New Principle

The silk shade rests on an inverted glass reflector which surrounds the bulb so that direct rays from the electric lamp can never strike you in the eyes. It's this reflector that saves your eyes and diffuses the light. The result is a single floor or table lamp that really lights a room.

Our representative would gladly discuss home lighting with you. He'll tell you about the beautiful new floor and table lamps that are designed after this new principle of lighting.

ODDS AND ENDS OF WEEK'S NEWS

Mrs. J. Reardon, of 876 Hanover street, spent Thursday of this week visiting in San Francisco at the home of Mrs. G. Filiatrault.

It is rumored that Daly City is to have a Mutual Chain Store in the new building being erected on the east side of Mission street between Evergreen and Templeton avenues.

Mrs. C. R. Martin, Jr., and daughter Betty Jane left last week for her home in Long Beach, after making her home for a few months with her sister, Mrs. E. J. Kremer, of 498 Frankfort street.

Miss Earl is giving an alumnium luncheon at Woodrow Wilson school, in the cooking class, no Wednesday next, at 11:30 a. m. The Parent-Teachers' Association of the school will be her guests.

Mrs. A. Chesney, of 298 Crocker avenue, had the pleasure of entertaining Mrs. Gus Tompkins, Mrs. Frank Zammitt and Mrs. W. O'Hearn at luncheon on Wednesday. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Minor Smith, of Redwood City, entertained a party of friends at dinner Sunday, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Mal Tacchi, of Santa Barbara avenue, and Mrs. R. Foppiano, of Evergreen avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sibilia, of 184 Peoria street, were hosts at a dinner party Sunday, September 25, entertaining Mr. and Mrs. D. Messenger, Mr. and Mrs. E. Greenough, Mr. and Mrs. C. Neideck and Mr. and Mrs. Hubener.

A machine driven by C. E. Anderson, 477 Knowles avenue, collided with one driven by G. W. McIsaac, 48 Miriam street, at Knowles avenue and Miriam street. No one was hurt, and there was but slight damage to either machine.

The friends of Stephen Pfeifer, president of Colma-Vista Grande Aerie No. 1848, F. O. E., are sorry to hear that he is at St. Mary's hospital, where he expects to be for about two weeks. He is suffering from injuries to his foot.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Meeth, of 368 Westlake avenue, went to Mountain View last Saturday to visit their son Paul Meeth and family, and on Sunday they motored to Santa Cruz, returning home Sunday night by way of Big Trees and Felton.

Chief of Police Doyle asks that the residents of Daly City be on the lookout for suspicious looking characters, and phone the local police department, Randolph 55, at any time, day or night. Also report any machines that look as if they had been stolen.

Mrs. Al. Parmisano, of 63 Irvington street, entertained some of her friends at a whist on Tuesday evening. Among those from Daly City in attendance were Miss Rose Parmisano and Mrs. Minnie Rancatore and daughters Florence and Evelyn.

The new building being erected on Mission street and Wellington avenue by A. Milo is progressing rapidly, and when completed will be a credit to the business section. Mr. Milo has given all the contracts, as far as possible, to local firms, which is another boost for Daly City.

The friends of Mrs. Harrell Chandler, of 660 Hanover street, were sorry to hear that her mother, Mrs. Taurreck, of San Francisco, was badly injured when she tripped over a box in her neighborhood store, and had to be treated at the Emergency hospital for a badly cut arm and bruises on the shoulder.

The ladies of Grace Presbyterian church gave a farewell party on Wednesday afternoon for Mrs. L. Tompsett, in the social hall of the church. Mrs. Tompsett left Wednesday night for Los Angeles, where she will make her home. The ladies presented the guest of honor with a beautiful picture as a parting gift.

The Ladies Aid of Grace Presbyterian church will hold their regular monthly luncheon Wednesday noon, October 5, at the church on Hanover street and Evergreen avenue. All are invited to attend and the committee, composed of Mrs. George Archer, Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. W. Jacques and Mrs. R. Wilkins, assure you something good to eat.

Mrs. E. Hailer and granddaughter Dorothy, of 967 Hanover street, accompanied her son George to Modesto last Sunday, where George played outfield for the Bohemian Garage baseball team against the Modesto Reds, the score being 6 to 3 in favor of the Bohemian Garage team. George's many friends are looking forward to seeing him play in the big league games some day.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Tompsett and son are sorry to hear that they have moved to Los Angeles to make their home. Mrs. Tompsett has been one of the staunch workers for the Grace Presbyterian church and Crocker School Parent-Teachers' Association, and she surely will be greatly missed. The home which they have been occupying at 178 Peoria street, belonging to W. Grace, has been rented to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rose and daughters Dorothy and Alice, of San Francisco.

MAXIMUM RATE FOR CALL

The telephone call over the greatest distance that it is possible to telephone within the boundaries of the United States would cost only $12 per the day rate or $6 by the night rate, for the initial three minute conversation.

The daily grind is harder when it is devoted to sharpening someone else's axe.

Perhaps they are called bungalows because so many of them are designed by bunglers.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGE UNDER POWER OF SALE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that THE HIBERNIA SAVINGS AND LOAN SOCIETY, a corporation, will sell on Monday, the 17th day of October, 1927, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., at public auction, to the highest bidder, under and by virtue of the terms and provisions of that certain mortgage executed and delivered by OLIVER FETTERLY, an unmarried man, to said Society, on the 5th day of September, 1925, and recorded in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, on the 10th day of September, 1925, in Liber 192 of Official Records, at page 24, San Mateo County Records, all that certain real property situate, lying and being in the County of San Mateo, State of California, more particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Lots Numbers Four (4), Five (5) and Six (6), in Block Number Three (3), as shown on that certain Map entitled "Map No. 1 Vista Grande, San Mateo County, California," filed in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County November 5, 1906, in Book "C" of Original Maps, at page 35, and copied in Book 4 of Maps, at page 41.

Notice of default in the payment of the obligation secured by said mortgage and the election of THE HIBERNIA SAVINGS AND LOAN SOCIETY to sell the real property hereinabove described to satisfy said obligation was, on the 13th day of June, 1927, duly recorded in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, as provided by Section 2924 of the Civil Code.

Said sale will be made for lawful money of the United States, payable upon delivery of the deed, and will be held at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., under and by virtue of the following provisions contained in said mortgage:

"And the Mortgagor hereby empowers the Mortgagee to sell and convey said mortgaged property at any time after default made in the payment of said Promissory Note, or the interest thereon, or after the breach of any obligation for which this mortgage is security; any such sale may be public or private, at the option of the Mortgagee, and may be made after such notice, and for such price, and on such terms as to payment or otherwise, as the Mortgagee may deem proper; at any such sale the Mortgagee, in its own name, or in the name of any person, shall have the right to purchase; and the Mortgagor hereby authorizes and empowers the Mortgagee to execute and deliver, in the name of the Mortgagor, a good and sufficient deed and conveyance of said property, or any part thereof; and any recitals contained in any conveyance of the mortgaged property which may be made by the Mortgagee, must be deemed conclusive evidenc of the facts recited."

Said sale will be made on the property hereinabove described, the Block in said tract being bounded by Knowles Avenue, Vista Avenue, Myrtle Street and Melrose Street, Daly City, San Mateo County, California.

AND NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that the said THE HIBERNIA SAVINGS AND LOAN SOCIETY will, at the conclusion of said sale, execute and deliver to the purchaser at said sale, a grant, bargain and sale deed conveying all of the interest of said Society and of said Mortgagor, or their sucessors, in and to said property.

Dated this 21st day of September, 1927.

Dead Spots Still Cause of Trouble

Mineral Deposits and Radio "Shadows" Among Theories Advanced.

By CARROL J. BURNSIDE

Generally speaking, the reason for broadcasting is to gain an audience. The idea is much the same as that behind a newspaper. The paper prints news and other interesting information to draw the attention of the reader and gain an audience with him, so that advertising or news of commercial value may be set before him in a pleasant and inviting way. So it is with the broadcaster.

He gains the attention of the public and pleases by means of entertaining and educational programs and then commercializes this attention by advertising in an agreeable and engaging way.

The value of the newspaper as a commercial medium lies in its audience, its circulation. And in the case of the broadcasting station its value lies in the size of its audience, its "coverage"—the territory over which it can be reliably heard.

Station Must Reach Out.

Good programs, well presented, are worthless commercially if they do not reach the listeners. Therefore, coverage is important above all else. It is useless to go on with the play if the curtain is not raised, even though the house be "sold to the doors."

Coverage depends upon the power of the broadcasting station and the density of population of the territory surrounding the station. These factors can be taken into consideration when the station is erected, but there is one "joker" to the proposition that never shows up until the station is completed and in operation. That is the elusive "dead spot." Because of this phenomenon the broadcasting stations whose programs are heard in foreign countries are sometimes unheard in certain localities only a few miles distant from the station.

Why? Well, at present no particular reason for these so-called "dead spots" has been demonstrated. Several theories have been advanced to prove that the cause may be laid to mineral deposits at or near the dead spot, radio "shadows" caused by mountain ranges, etc., over the dead spot, and other ideas, numerous but unsubstantiated. But, while the reasons and proofs are lacking, the "dead spots" are very much in evidence. The solution is not to worry about why they are present, but how to get around their detrimental effects.

In 1921 the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company erected its New England station, WBZ, in Springfield, Mass. This station was to have the New England states for its coverage, as well as adjacent Canadian provinces. The station met with popular approval and its signals were often heard in every state of the Union and province of Canada.

Dead Spot in Boston.

The coverage was much better than expected, except for one spot and this, ironically, was the most important and densely populated spot in New England—the city of Boston. WBZ's signal, while loud and clear on all sides of this great city, was weak and unreliable on the loud speakers of the listeners in Boston.

First, the power of WBZ was increased and though this added to the reports of reception in distant places it did not appreciably affect the reception in Boston. The final solution to the problem was an engineering feat of no small importance. A second station, WBZA, was erected with only sufficient power to reach the listeners of Boston. The program being sent out from WBZ in Springfield was simultaneously transmitted from WBZA so that Boston was receiving the program sent out by WBZ, but the signal was actually coming from WBZA. This WBZA was just an auxiliary or "booster" station.

Congestion Caused Change.

This booster was temporarily operated on a different wave-length than that of WBZ and the system then operated as two stations putting out the same program at the same time, but on different frequencies.

About this time the wave-band crowding situation arose and the synchronization of WBZ-WBZA released the extra wave channel occupied by WBZA, yet, still retaining the advantage of this station's booster action.

Thus the first successful operation of two stations in synchronism on the same wave-length was achieved. WBZ in Springfield and WBZA in Boston are now operated in synchronism, transmitting the same program on the same wave-length simultaneously. Another so-called impossibility had been accomplished and another milestone in radio and scientific history had been passed.

Soldering Irons

The half-pound soldering iron used for general soldering work is too large for the fine operations of a radio set, and for this purpose a quarter-pound copper should be used, with a long point drawn out on it, preferably with one side of the point one-quarter inch wide and the other slightly narrower.

Speaker May Be Cause of Set Working Poorly

The loud speaker is quite often at fault when the set fails to operate. This is a very sensitive instrument and easily gets out of adjustment, and trouble will be experienced if it is moved about frequently. Make sure that the positive cord of the loud speaker is connected to the positive side of the loud speaker jack connections. The cord tip marked with a red tracer must go to the positive side. Cone speakers may get out of order and sound rattly due to weather conditions. This can be remedied if there is some way of tightening the paper cone by resetting the phone unit. On the nonadjustable horn-type speaker there is usually one or two gaskets between the diaphragm and shell of the phone unit. If the magnets are not strong enough, they fail to actuate the diaphragm properly, and weak tones are the result. To remedy this, remove one of the gaskets or screw the cap down tighter, so as to bring the diaphragm closer to the magnets. The adjusting knob of the other type often slips, and turning it seems to have no effect on the volume; in this case the setscrew should be loosened and set to a different position until reception is improved. After repeated adjustments the diaphragm may become warped, and the only remedy for this is to remove it and level it on a perfectly flat surface.

Must Not Turn Battery Upside Down to Drain

To properly drain the cells of a storage battery, the sealed top should be removed and the plates taken out. Then the jars can be emptied. Do not attempt to drain the electrolyte from the battery through the vent provided for filling. During the life of a battery quite a portion of the active material constituting the plates will be shed and will drop to the bottom of the cells in the space provided for it. In time, quite a bit of it collects and if the battery is turned upside down to drain the solution and wash out the cells, this sediment will naturally fall with the liquid, lodge between the plates and form short circuits which will eventually ruin the battery. It will be found practically impossible to remove it all from between the plates, even by flushing with water.

Radio Operator Loses Station When in Haste

There is much to be learned from watching the average radio operator tuning his set. If he is trying to find an out-of-town station or one a little beyond his usual range, he seems to violate all the simple rules of radio and to proceed on altogether different lines than in the case of fishing for his local station.

One of the most common mistakes he makes is to assume that because he does not hear a station immediately it is not on the air or his set will not reach for it. The chances are, however, that he has gotten the station during one of those periods when the announcer has asked his audience to stand by. It is a fact that the slow tuner usually gets the station.

Will Radio Fans Move to Death Valley Now?

Is Death valley, far below sea level in California, the best place in the world to operate a radio set? A set was taken to the sun-baked bottom of the valley recently and attached to a temporary aerial. The operator tuned for various Pacific coast broadcast stations and got them with ease. When he attempted distance the very first long-range station he got was PWX, Havana, Cuba. This astonishing feat indicated that the peculiar California depression is a sort of radio bowl. This may prove a helpful factor in future radio development.

Surgical Forceps Are Handy in Radio Work

A very handy tool for the radio kit box is a surgical instrument known as a hemostatic forceps. The handles are provided with a spring lock, which grasps any object and immediately locks it in a strong grip, if desired, and can be quickly released by a slight side pressure on the handles. The forceps are very useful in soldering, holding a screw by the head and starting it in a hole far down in the bottom of the set, and for picking up small objects from the most inaccessible places.

Loud Speaker Hint

Most radio sets are turned on too loudly, with the result that the reproduced voice and music sound harsh and raucous and echo badly. To avoid such unsatisfactory results in a small apartment or house, the volume control should be turned down so that the voice of an announcer issues from the loud speaker with the same intensity as ordinary human speech.

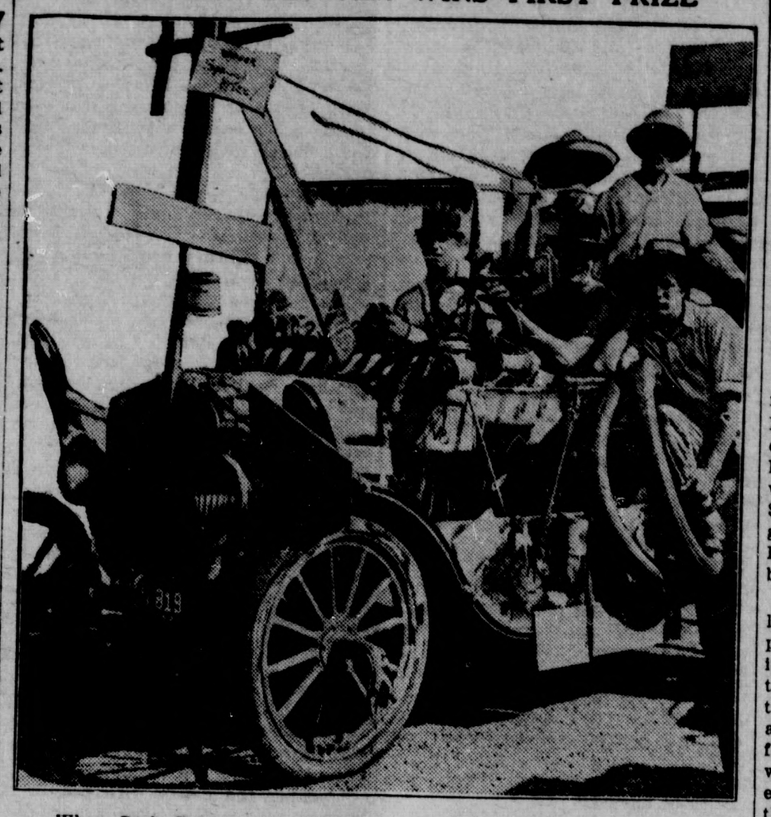
Clean Battery After Charging

Immediately after the battery is charged, clean around the top of the battery. Acid sprayed about during the charge may thus be prevented from seeping through and injuring the cells.

Many Types of Tubes

There are no fewer than 20 types of radio vacuum tubes manufactured under one trade name. This gives some idea as to how many different uses there are for vacuum tubes.

OBSOLETE FLIVVER WINS FIRST PRIZE



When Jack Palmer and Bob Hays decided to enter their rather old-fashioned and now perhaps obsolete flivver in a beach parade held at San Diego recently, they little knew that the first prize would be theirs. The photograph shows Jack Palmer and Bob Hays in their "strange" flivver which won first prize.

WITHIN THE MAGIC CIRCLE OF WHEEL

Physicians Recommend Automobile Driving as Cure for Nervousness.

Within the magic circle of a motor car's steering wheel, the driver may find increased health and happiness.

This statement, poetical as it sounds, is based on hard facts. Physicians today recommend automobile driving as a cure for many of those minor nervous disorders, which, though unimportant in themselves, can make life thoroughly miserable. Worry, timidity, "that tired feeling"—ailments such as these, it is claimed, respond to the car-driving treatment, although the automobile should never be considered a "cure all."

Why Driving Is Healthful.

The principal health value in driving an automobile is that driving furnishes a form of exercise that it is difficult to obtain outside a gymnasium. Dr. Henry Smith Williams, of the National Committee of Mental Hygiene, says that driving as an exercise is better than walking, because in walking only the leg muscles are exercised, while in driving the important muscles of the trunk are stimulated. It is true, he says, that the handling of the steering wheel is not a strenuous form of exercise, but he points out that this, instead of being a defect, is a merit, because it assures mild, but persistent, exercise.

What Becomes of "Nerves"?

But what about "nerves"? It is a curious fact that driving an automobile, instead of being a source of worry and fear, often produces a healthy, confident mental attitude. Many splendid and fearless drivers are made of men and women who are timid about riding in a car which somebody else drives. A new sense of power, the vision of almost unlimited possibilities for self improvement, seem to go along with the mastery of driving principles. The steering wheel of a motor car has led many out of a morbid, imaginative world into the normal world of reality and well-being.

Old Law Holds Inn for Theft of an Automobile

In olden days in England when inns were remote and highwaymen were rampant it was not uncommon for the robbers and the innkeepers to be in league, so laws were passed holding innkeepers responsible for the safety of guests and their goods.

These laws still stand, and figured in the loss of an automobile valued at £267, stolen from the parking place of the Bridge House hotel at Staines. Alexander Dixon Aria, a banker's agent, contended that by the innkeepers' act the common law of England was applicable.

Justice Swift pointed out that the law had been framed for hundreds of years, that under it an innkeeper was liable for the safety of his guests and such of their property as came into his custody, and the jury found for the plaintiff in the case.

Honking Taxi Horns Is Now Being Investigated

The bedlam of honking horns on taxis and motor vehicles, the visitor's first impression of Paris, is to be diminished. Paris is to toot in one tone and toot less often if the investigation of the French board of inquiry into traffic problems comes to anything.

All kinds of noise-makers are to be examined. One will be chosen for all public vehicles. M. Chiapple, newly appointed prefect of police, declares that at present the noise makes conversation almost impossible on Paris boulevards.

Windshield Etiquette

It seems to be the ambition of most automobile drivers to see how close they can come to the other fellow's car without actually taking off a fender. Their slogan is, "Hew to the line, let the parts fall where they may!"

Convenient Support for Holding Heavy Tires

In vulcanizing shops where many large heavy tires are repaired the labor of buffing and cleaning the damaged fabric is extremely difficult, as each tire not only must be supported at several different angles against the buffing wheel, but must often be held in one position for a considerable length of time. To simplify the task, a Wisconsin repairman devised an adjustable support which accommodates itself instantly to any size tire. The clamp that holds the tire is made from two short pieces of two by four inch material, hinged to open one way only, from a pulley in the ceiling by means of a counterbalanced rope. In operation the clamp is drawn down to the floor and the hinged clamp partly closed so that the ends of the legs may be inserted into the tire. When the rope is released the counterweight draws the clamp upward, opening the hinge so that the tire is held firmly and may be easily supported at any height desired. Thus the operator is free to direct his entire energy and attention to the buffing and cleaning without undue fatigue.—G. E. Hendrickson, Argyle, Wis., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

The legislative committee, created to investigate the question of compulsory automobile liability insurance in California and to inquire and report also upon automobile traffic regulation in the State, was organized last week at its initial meeting in the state building.

With one theater well under way for L. L. Cory on the site of the old Hippodrome on Fresno street, Fresno, construction of a second modern playhouse was started there last week, when application was filed for the new $300,000 Pantages house, which will go up at Fulton and Tuolumne streets, Fresno. Several subcontracts have been let for preliminary work.

It is estimated that the 3-cent gasoline tax in California will bring in approximately $30,000,000 per year during the twenty-year period for which the law is to be effective, according to the National Automobile Club. The amount will be expended one-third for construction of new state highways; one-third for maintenance of existing highways, and one-third for the general road fund of the fifty-eight counties, the latter amounts to be proportional to the motor vehicle registration of the county.

The net income for the State Real Estate Department of California from January 1, 1927, to June 30 amounted to $143,049, according to a statement submitted to State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson by Commissioner Stephen Barnson. During the first six months of the year, the department had a gross income of $220,129, while its expenditures amounted to $77,079, the statement shows.

Fresno and valley residents last week felt their homes rock, saw their dinner dishes shift and heard them rattle, saw floor and table lamps and chandeliers sway, and wondered, for a few moments, what it was all about. Soon, however, they realized they had experienced an earthquake, the most distinct which has been felt in the San Joaquin Valley in years.

California railroads fired the opening gun in a new phase of the "transportation war" last week when they obtained permission to reduce certain classes of freight rates to San Joaquin valley and Monterey peninsula points. In an order issued by the Railroad Commission the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe companies are authorized to reduce their rates 10 per cent on canned goods, sugar and dried fruits between San Francisco and the points named. The new tariff goes into effect immediately.

The death toll of accidents involving steam and electric railroads in California from July 1, 1926, to June 31, 1927, was 349 lives, the annual report of the transportation division of the Railroad Commission revealed last week. Attempts of motorists to "beat the train to a crossing" resulted in far the largest number of accidents, with 143 killed and 847 injured in 1638 collisions, it is declared by J. G. Hunter, engineer in charge of the division. All other accidents total 2580, with 206 killed and 3735 injured.

The Railroad Commission will have ready for distribution to the public within a few days copies of a phamphlet on "Practice and Procedure before the Railroad Commission of California," it was announced last week. The 36-page booklet is prepared by Carl I. Wheat, attorney for the commisison, and goes extensively into the jurisdiction and powers of that body and the requirements for presentation of applications and other legal forms.

Wide interest in the Pacific Foreign Trade and Travel Exposition, to be held in San Francisco from November 11 to 20, holds throughout Central America, according to a message received by local officials from Dr. L. S. Lowe in South America. Dr. Lowe is director-general of the Pan-American Union. "This is a large and important plan, and I am certain that the exposition will have a large and far-reaching influence," he wrote, in pledging the aid of his organization. Displays of the varied products of Latin America will be part of the exposition. Bulletins of the Pan American Union are carrying announcements of the exposition, published in English, Spanish and Portuguese, all over North and South America.

A county-wide effort is being made by chamber of commerce, service clubs and other organizations this week to secure a United States weather bureau for Stockton. The Stockton chamber of commerce led the campaign by adopting a resolution calling upon Congressman Charles F. Curry to assist in securing the station. A number of similar resolutions citing the importance of such a station from an agricultural standpoint have since been adopted by other organizations.

What is believed to be the first four-year high school course in aeronautics ever offered in California will be given during this term at the Galt Joint Union high school, Sacramento, according to an announcement by Principal William Rutherford. The course will include instruction in airship design and construction.

Mrs. Daisy M. Lorentzen, said to be the first woman in California ordered to pay alimony to her husband, Harold J. Lorentzen, pending settlement of her suit for divorce, last week was ordered to appear in court to explain why she had failed to do so.

California aeries of the Fraternal Order of Eagles won a membership contest with the aeries in the state of Washington, according to a letter received by George Vice, state treasurer for the order, from Forrest B. Owens of Los Angeles, the state representative for the lodge. The contest closed June 1, last. California aeries secured at total of 7,147 new members during the year, while Washington aeries, including most of those in the Dominion of Canada, secured but 7,020.

Further indicative of the state's war upon drunken driving is a report issued last week by Frank G. Snook, chief of the division of motor vehicles, showing that the licenses of twenty-one California motorists were cancelled during August for that offense, bringing to forty-one the total for two months.

The licensing of 126 California produce dealers under the law enacted by the last legislature has been reported by the State Department of Agriculture, the administering force. There are yet sixty-three dealers who have paid their license fees, but to whom licenses have not been issued. Of the licensed dealers sixty are in Los Angeles, eight in San Francisco, nine each in Fresno and San Diego and six in Stockton.

Receipts of $33,096 from the sale of 12,548 acres of state school lands in San Bernardino, Los Angeles, Mendocino, Lake, Napa and Riverside counties during August has just been reported by Surveyor-General Kingsbury. The proceeds will be turned over to the school land fund, the interest from which is used by the Department of Education for appropriations to school districts for the state's share of their expenses.

A new survey, described as the most accurate of its kind ever made in Stockton, placing $38,493,000 as the value of Stockton's industrial products for 1927 has just been completed by G. L. Fox, industrial secretary of the Stockton chamber of commerce. The survey was worked out in co-operation with the United States Census Bureau. The survey shows that 189 enterprises exist within the city limits. None of the figures include such factories as are located on the outskirts of Stockton. There are 4175 wage earners and a total of 5328 persons are engaged, this latter figure including factory owners, managers and superintendents. The amount paid in wages is $5,785,000. The cost of materials is $23,776,000 and the value of products after manufacture, $38,493,000. The increase in value due manufacture is $14,717,000.

Construction of a 40,000-gallon reservoir was completed recently by the Conejo Mutual Water Company, at Oxnard, which supplies Santa Rosa Valley residents with water for domestic and irrigation purposes. The reservoir, of reinforced concrete, is the second of the kind and capacity, built by the company.

Whether the Oroville chamber of commerce will sponsor an orange and olive exposition this fall will probably be determined at a membership meeting of the chamber on September 30. The gathering will be held in the memorial building and will be presided over by President W. A. Finney of the chamber of commerce.

Traveling men from all over the state of California, hundreds of them, will be in Redding Saturday night, December 10, to enjoy the third annual party of the California Travelers' Indoor Rodeo Association at the Golden Eagle Hotel.

Big game hunters need no longer leave the state. Some excellent sport in the way of bear hunting can be enjoyed in Tuolumne county. Now that the closed season on bruin has been lifted, hunters in the higher regions are potting many bears. In a single day seven were killed at Spicer Meadow, on Highland creek, and last week an unusually large bear was brought down at Wheat's Meadow.

Soon residents of far off Argentine will be munching Tuolumne county apples. Two carloads are being selected for Argentine markets and San Francisco for transfer to a steamer. If the experiment proves satisfactory, further shipments will be forwarded in a few days to follow.

The old hydraulic mining town of You Bet, ten miles east of Grass Valley, has had its first birth in twenty-one years, it being a daughter born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brady, one of the few remaining families in that region. The town once had a population of several hundred people and a large public school. The entire region is virtually deserted at present.

A resolution last asking that the California State Federation of Labor in convention at San Bernardino recommend to the American Federation of Labor that a body of laborers be sent to Soviet Russia to gain some of the Soviet principles, was defeated. The measure was introduced by Sam Loberman of the Cigarmakers' Union of Los Angeles.

San Francisco Stock and Bond Exchange members last week voted to raze the present class C building in which the largest exchange outside of New York City in the country is housed and proceed with all expedition to the erection of a new monumental building on the present site on Montgomery street which will be devoted exclusively to exchange purposes. It is expected to invest approximately $509,800 in the building, which will be located on the west side of Montgomery street, south of California.

BABY NOW HAS CHANCE

In the long list of accomplishments to the credit of modern medical science, perhaps none has a greater significance that the success attained in the reduction of childhood deaths. A recent writer recalls that Queen Anne of England, born in 1664, bore seventeen children, only one of whom lived more than a year, and he died at the age of 11. Now large families of children often mature without a single death.

Through medical education and the treatment of early defects, the child's chance of reaching maturity has been greatly increased, especially during the last half century. The lengthened average span of human life which now prevails is largely due to the reduction of mortality among infants.

In addition to regularly employed physicians and nurses by public health units, thousands of volunteer workers are co-operating in the noble task of saving babies' lives. In Kansas City alone it is said that 3,000 of these volunteers aided in this movement last year.

For their effective efforts in this and other directions looking to the preservation of human life, the medical profession and those co-operating are entitled to high praise.

SEEKING NEW DRY CHIEF

Death having removed prohibition's most outstanding champion, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, that organization is faced with the necessity of choosing a successor to that energetic and politically powerful leader.

Eight or more names have been suggested, but so far no official action has been taken toward a selection. Wayne B. Wheeler was both general counsel and legislative agent of the Anti-Saloon League, and these offices may be separated in the future, it is said. Certainly it would take two average executives to carry on the intensive labors which Mr. Wheeler performed alone. Rev. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the League, will act as legislative agent for the present, and may continue as such, but a new general counsel will be appointed soon.

The recent declaration of Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, that the service is honeycombed with dishonesty and graft, has created a stir in political circles, which may result in a sweeping investigation of enforcement methods by Congress.

To meet the conditions which have been created by this pronouncement, as well as the increasing violent attacks of foes of the Volstead Act, the Anti-Saloon League will stand in need of its strongest leaders in the immediate future. It will be indeed fortunate if it can develop a new chief with ability and energy equal to that displayed for so many years by Wayne B. Wheeler.

VIOLATED CHILD LABOR LAW

That it is unlawful to work minors in excess of eight hours per day is now thoroughly understood by George Shannon, superintendent of the Hume Cannery, at Turlock. Although he was advised repeatedly by the Division of Industrial Welfare that his cannery must stop working girls under 18 years of age for more than eight hours in one day, he did not take these warnings seriously.

But last week he was arrested by the officers of the Division of Labor Statistics and Law Enforcement of the Department of Industrial Relations, and was formally charged with violating Section 2 of the Child Labor law.

The superintendent of the cannery was arraigned before Justice of the Peace W. H. Rice, of Modesto. He pleaded guilty and was fined $150—fifty dollars on each of the three specific charges filed against him.

American Legion delegates may have said: "Lafayette, we are here again."

THE SECOND A. E. F.

During the past month several thousand of the American Expeditionary Force of ten years ago once more visited France, but this time on a mission of peace as delegates and visitors to the convention of the American Legion. Many who were not permitted to go overseas during the war visited France for the first time. All are to be envied by those who were unable to make the trip with this great delegation, which has been called "the second A. E. F."

Before the departure of the principal officers of the Legion on the Leviathan, Secretary of War Davis addressed the veterans and wished them "bon voyage," saying in part:

"You are going on a pious pilgrimage, second in importance only to that first pilgrimage which will have an imperishable place in history as the A. E. F. At your head is our able, earnest and sincere National Commander Howard Savage. At his right hand is our gallant leader of the A. E. F., whom we all admire, respect and revere, General John J. Pershing. Among our guests tonight is our wise, efficient, far-sighted war-time Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker. You are going as representatives of one of America's patriotic organizations, the American Legion. You are ambassadors of good will from America to our ancient friend and recent ally, France. Truly, you are to be envied."

General Pershing delivered an inspiring address, which included the following:

"The Legion is a truly representative body, in which there is no distinction based on rank in service or political belief. It is non-partisan and speaks with the voice of patriotism, which recognizes no sectional lines. It is therefore pre-eminently American. Moreover, it will be the balance-wheel of peace, for there is no class so determined to maintain peace as the men who know what war really is."

News reports indicate that Paris and France gave the Legion a most enthusiastic and hearty welcome, such as was fitting to be extended to "the second A. E. F." That the visit of the Legionnaires will further cement the historic friendship of America and France can not be doubted.

CURBING A NUISANCE

For several years numerous individuals and firms have greatly annoyed citizens throughout the country by sending them articles of merchandise, which had not been ordered, by mail "on approval."

Recipients of these unsolicited packages of merchandise, usually hosiery, neckties and other articles of no great value, have apparently accepted the stuff and paid for it in a large percentage of cases, thus encouraging the spread of the practice.

Senders of these goods have attempted to secure payment from some unwilling customers by means of tracers sent through regular postal channels, thus apparently making the Post Office Department a party to the scheme. This has been resented by the department, which now proposes legislation making these annoying practices an offense against the postal laws, a measure which will doubtless meet with general pproval on the part of the public.

Until this nuisance shall be curbed by official action, intended victims might adopt measures of their own similar to that employed by a certain physician, who received a $2 package of socks which had not been ordered.

Instead of sending the money, he wrote a letter enclosing a prescription, which he assured the sender of the merchandise to be worth $2, and asked that the account be balanced accordingly. The mail order man evidently possessed a sense of humor—at any rate he accepted the prescription and let it go at that.

FARM CO-OP EXHIBIT

With a view to further stimulating the co-operative marketing of farm products, particularly cotton, the Department of Agriculture is preparing an exhibit on the subject, to be shown at state fairs in Atlanta, Memphis and Dallas, during the month of October.

According to a department announcement, the exhibit will consist of three panels, graphically presenting the growth of co-operative marketing. In connection with the exhibit will be shown a hundred or more pictures with descriptive titles to be thrown on a screen for the benefit of the spectators. These will attractively portray the development and present extent of co-operative marketing in the United States, which is now carried on by more than 12,000 separate associations handling various products.

It is estimated that these associations now market about one-fifth of the total products sold by farmers of the country. Five or six of the largest associations do an annual business of approximately $50,000,000, while about 150 others handle an annual volume of more than a million dollars each.

The movement for co-operative marketing of farm products has been beset with many difficulties and some serious reverses, but the idea is sound and seems likely to prevail at an ever increasing extent. It is one of the striking illustrations of the benefits to be derived from the application of sound business methods to agriculture.

From now on things will seem slow around Rapid City.

JAZZ PRAYER SERVICE

Can dancing and prayer be combined? Church leaders in Kansas City are in controversy over this question, following the inauguration Sunday night by the Linwood armory youth forum of the prayer dance—a dance which opens with hymns and which closes with prayer, benediction and doxology.

The prayer-dance was originated to furnish Sunday night activity to modern youth. It is backed by a church and military organization and is held at an armory.

The Linwood Christian church and the 110th Engineers are sponsors of the youth forum which has instituted this semi-religious, semi-jazz service. The Rev. Earl A. Blackman, assistant pastor of the Linwood church, is president of the forum. Ruby D. Garrett, commander of the signal corps of the Rainbow division in the World war, is dance chaperone.

The dance is preceded by a community song service for which music is furnished by a popular type orchestra. Both hymns and popular songs are sung. An hour and a half of dancing follows, after which a bugler calls the dancers to religious services. This consists of a hymn, the recitation of the Lord's prayer and the singing of the doxology. The service lasts from 7:45 to 10:30 o'clock and during that time no one is permitted to leave the building.

Opening the dance with prayer is by no means a new procedure, as the Mormons have for year followed that practice, opening and closing "ward," or paris, dances with prayer.

ONLY A STRAY DOG

The poem entitled "Stray Dog" appeared in Munsey's Magazine for August, and is by an Oregon writer, Miss Chalotte Mish, of Portland. It is an unusually beautiful poem and carries a vital message back of it. Here's a knockout for sham sympathy:

Your wistful eyes searched each one as he passed,
Stray dog—so lost, so starved and starkly thin—
And yet your gallant hope held to the last
That there would come a heart to take you in.

Some came who jeered at your bewilderment,
Some kicked you, shouted, threw things till you had gone;
But, oh, more cruel was the one who bent
And petted you, and murmured—and went on.

That new microscope which shows the interior organs of a microbe might disclose the intestinal equipment of a masked flogger.

A writer declares that "there are no longer Maltese dags in Malta." Still, if they want their dogs longer they might import a few daschunds.

COUNTY CLERK DESCRIBES SEA HUNT FOR PLANES

A search through the Pacific ocean for the missiing Dole air derby fliers, which took the steamship Matsonia twelve miles out of its course, was told by County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese last Friday upon her return from a trip to the Hawaiian Islands.

A floating tree sighted by the ship's officers was the cause of the flurry of excitement. Its roots looked like striped wings of an airplane and the trunk like a fuselage. It was not until the ship came within a few hundred feet of the floating object that the officers discovered that it was a tree.

Mrs. Kneese also witnessed the memorial services on the steamship Mauii in mid-Pacific. Following the services the Matsonia took the chaplain and a newspaper photographer from the Mauii back to San Francisco, while it transferred a stowaway to the Honolulu bound boat.

While on the Hawaiian Islands, Mrs. Kneese visited Hilo, Honolulu, the volcanoes and other points of interest. She stated she particularly enjoyed swimming on the beach of Wakiki in the moonlight. The county clerk also met Governor-General Farrington.

With Mrs. Kneese on the vacation tour was her husband, County Surveyor George A. Kneese, and her mother.

FORTY SCENES IN GAY PAREE

The 180 minutes required for the revelation of "Gay Paree," which comes to the Curran Theatre, San Francisco, Sunday, October 2, are punctured by forty odd scenes of diversified character. The claim is made that a quarter of a million dollars is represented in the production. Thousands of dollars have been lavished on opulent spectacles that are scarcely flashed before the eye ere they vanish.

The kaleidoscopic celerity with which the double score of pictorial incidents are revealed requires a crew of stage mechanics well nigh as populous as the entertainers visible to the public. Tons of intricate and cumbersome machinery are required to produce several of the more elaborate effects.

At once the most beautiful and daring of the tableaux vivants is "L'Eventail des Femmes d'Amour," or the Fan of Ladies of Love, in which half a dozen fair Parisiennes pose attractively. "Fine Feathers Don't Make Fine Birds" is the song title of the number accompanying another daring importation from the Follies Bergere.

Messrs. Shubert announce that the entire New York Winter Garden production is being carried on tour.

Mail orders for the engagement of "Gay Paree" will be honored in rotation when accompanied by remittance in full and self-addressed stamped envelope. The prices are from $1 to $3 for nights. Wednesday matinee, 50 cents to $2. Saturday matinee, 50 cents to $2.50.

Miss Nellie Burke, wealthy London girl, hac quit society life to follow the occupation of cook, declaring that: "I will never go back to idle my time away."

"THEY WATCHED HIM" IS TEXT OF SERMON

in His life and He will be discredited before men.

Reading their hearts, overlooking their weakness and hatred, He tries to assist them. He answered His own question, "Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath?" in the affirmative. When He sent the dropsical man away healed, He gave the Pharisees a new viewpoint. His religion was not a bondage of rules. It could not see sorrow and suffering without relieving the afflicted. It was not an unreasoning and unceasing cry for the sanctity of the Sabbath that passed with the Jewish dispensation. It was not a chronic and continued ache that urged constant attacks upon the pleasures of life. Its purpose was to bring them back in heaping measure. The religion He fostered, the standard He set gave to God the things that were God's. Holding no paradox, it included a wholesome consideration for the rights and needs of men and women.

Christ conformed his conduct to the moral law that is more pervasive than gravitation—it is inescapable. From the heights of the throne of God down to the pit of hell, there is one moral law. This law is that every man, woman and child shall everywhere measure their obligations by the rights of all beings who are capable of pleasure or pain.

God Himself felt that He must obey the laws of morality. He felt it was lawful to heal on the Sabbath; that it is ever lawful to relieve the pangs of pain and dry the tears of grief. He realized "They Watched Him," and He demonstrated for them a few virtues they should practice. He held up faith for their consideration and evidenced its reward. The dropsical man had utter confidence in Christ. His faith prompted him simply to come closer to the Divine Miracle Worker. Presently he was sent away healed.

Faith is a test of love. Without faith men can not please or approach God. It is written, "He that believeth not shall be condemned." Hope is something that extends beyond the grave. It wants to see Christ as the afflicted saw Him. It wants sanctification and redemption. It wants to see God shining forth in all men so that He may shine in them hereafter.

We love not only in word and tongue, but in deed and truth—and that is charity. The hand of Christ was ever raised to benefit, console and uplift the powerless and poor, for He was the God who taught the Gospel of Charity. "Be in peace with all men" was His plea. "Perfect," He seemed to say to the Pharisees, "these three and you have a strong cord of love that reaches to heaven."

BUSINESS MEN BATTLING FOR BAY SHORE EXTENSION

It is understood that representatives from the Chambers of Commerce in San Mateo, Burlingame, Redwood City, Palo Alto, San Jose and San Francisco will attend a meeting of the State Highway Commission to be held in Sacramento today. The purpose of the hearing is to make sure that the bids for construction of the bay shore extension will be opened immediately. "This is a critical moment," said J. E. McCurdy, chairman of the Peninsula hoghway committee, "for if the bids are not opened right now the matter is likely to be laid aside for a few months."

REDWOOD AVIATION FIELD MANAGER DEAD

Otis Earl Saunders, who had charge of the Redwood City aviation field for the past two years, passed away at his home in Redwood City Wednesday morning, after a long illness. Saunders, a native of Washington, D. C., was 35 years old. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Florence S. Saunders, and two children.

SCIOTS BAND TO AID CHILDREN

San Mateo Pyramid, No. 25, Ancient Egyptian Order of Sciots, have provided for the care of needy children in the Stanford Convalescent Home and other similar institutions. The San Mateo Pyramid band will take part in the "Pageant of Egyptia," to be held at the San Francisco Auditorium on the evenings of October 13 and 14. This pageant is under the auspices of San Francisco Pyramid No. 1, with a cast of several hundred. The San Mateo band will also play at the laying of the corner stone of the the Redwood City Junior College building on October 8.

HIT BY MACHINE, LOSES LEG

Johnny Paini, of the Bellasini ranch at Half Moon Bay, lost his right leg Sunday when his motorcycle was run down by an automobile, two miles south of Half Moon Bay. The leg was amputated at the Mills Memorial hospital, San Mateo, where the injured man was taken after the accident. The driver of the automobile was held, pending further investigation of the accident.

Petition for a uniform plumbing ordinance for San Mateo county was brought up before the San Bruno city council at its last meeting. The ordinance was turned over to the city attorney, and copies will be sent to all bodies of city councilmen in the county.

LAWNDALE'S "BLUE LAW" IS UPHELD BY COURT

The sale of tombstones on Sunday will not be permitted in the town of Lawndale, Judge George H. Buck, of Redwood City, having denied the injunction asked by the makers of tombstones.

A law was enacted by the town of Lawdale some six months ago, declaring against the manufacture and sale of tombstones on Sunday.

Gaetano Bocci and his sons, of Lawndale, alleged that because they did more business on Sunday than all other days of the week combined, they decided to continue the practice of chiseling, cutting and selling.

Nello Bocco, one of the sons, was subsequently arrested by the Lawndale police, and when the case was decided against him in the municipal court an appeal was taken to the Superior Court on July 13 in a suit filed to test the validity of the law.

According to the decision of the court, tombstones may be necessary to the peace of the departed and a monument to the pride of those left behind, but all that will have to be attended to in Lawdale on some other day than Sunday.

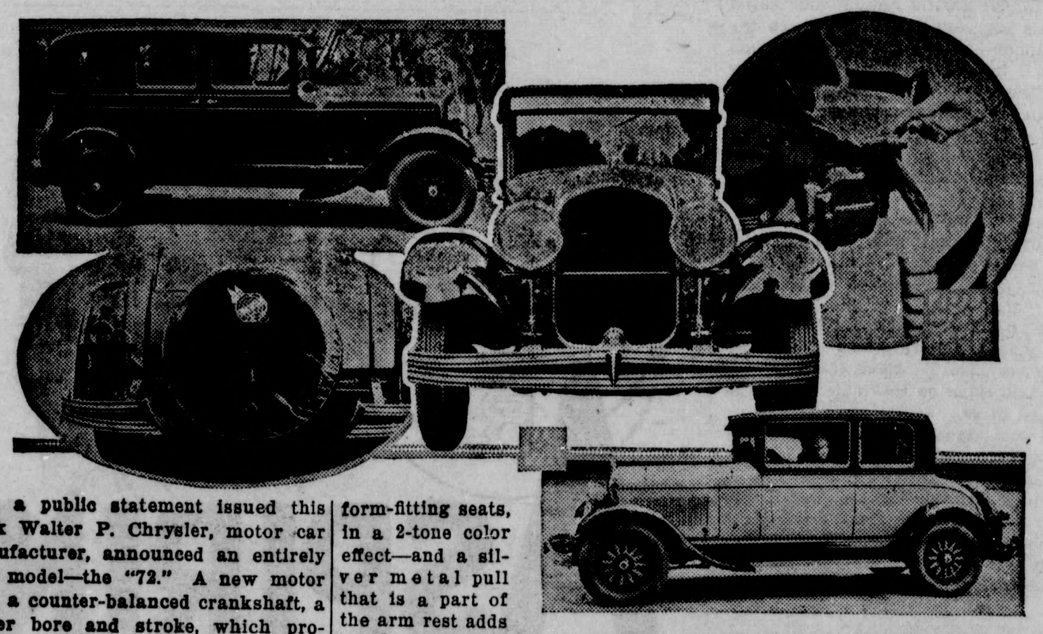
CHRYSLER "72" EMBODIES NEW FEATURES



In a public statement issued this week Walter P. Chrysler, motor car manufacturer, announced an entirely new model—the "72." A new motor with a counter-balanced crankshaft, a larger bore and stroke, which produces 75 horsepower and is capable of maintaining a speed of 72 miles or more per hour is the outstanding feature. Ten inches have been added to the frame, which gives the new car an appearance that was not found in the old models. Great care has been shown in the selection of interior decorations and fittings. Beautiful mohair covers the deeply upholstered form-fitting seats, in a 2-tone color effect—and a silver metal pull that is a part of the arm rest adds to the complete comfort found in the new cars. The picture in the upper left corner is that of the new Crown sedan—in the lower right corner is the new four-pasenger coupe, which is one of the most striking models of the "72" line. (Center) is a head-on view of the new Chrysler radiator and the new full drum headlights mounted on nickled posts. The picture in the upper right corner shows the housing which covers the blocks of live rubber in which all the spring shackles are set. This feature greatly improves the riding qualities of the car. The lower left corner shows a picture of the new factory-built bumper, which has been designed not only to protect the rear end of the car, but to improve its appearance by following the lines of the spare tire.

We are now displaying in our show rooms the new "52," "62," "72" and "82" Chrysler. You are invited to come in and look them over. You'll be most welcome.
—We also have a few excellent buys in high-grade 1927 second-hand Chryslers.

World's Oldest Bush

According to Dr. Edgar T. Wherry of the Department of Agriculture, a box huckleberry bush in Perry county, Pa., is the oldest bush in the world. This remarkable bush is a mile and a quarter long and covers the entire side of a hill. Doctor Wherry estimates that it grows six inches a year. Taking that as a basis the plant must be something like 12,000 years old.

The Green Cloak

By YORKE DAVIS

WNU Service. Copyright, 1926

His first questions were about the cloak; where she had bought it, and whether, so far as she knew, there were a good many others like it. The girl's whole interest, as shown by her replies, appeared to be to perfect her identification of it. She admitted, reluctantly, that hundreds of them had been sold in the city that fall; admitted that she herself had seen dozens on the street, the counterpart of it in cut and in color. But this particular cloak, she protested, she knew without a doubt to be her own. It was badly rumpled and had been exposed to the weather, was hardly fit to wear any more, but, notwithstanding these facts, she knew that it was hers.

"Was it in good condition the last time you wore it?"

"It looked as good as new."

"Then how can you be sure that the one which was advertised as found is the same one?"

Well, she was sure, and she proceeded to demonstrate the fact by a multitude of details—some of her own sewing, and a patch on the lining which she could not mistake.

"How did you come to lose the cloak?"

"I don't know, sir," she answered. "I just wish I did. I think one of the other housemaids stole it, sir, or borrowed it and didn't bring it back. I suppose they thought because I was sick I wouldn't have any use for my cloak. I didn't know nothin' about it until today. Then I looked for it and it was gone. So I begun askin' the other girls about it, and at last one of them said—she was a girl who had given notice and was readin' the want columns every day—she said there was a green cloak advertised found. So I went and got it. But I'd like to get hold of the girl that borrowed it. I'd make her take it and buy me a new one, or I'd have the law on her."

Ashton had listened to this speech with a show of somewhat greater interest. Evidently it occurred to him that an inquiry as to who the girl suspected of having taken it might be productive of results. She could easily be induced to tell all she knew about the other employees in the hotel. So much was clear. But when, instead of following up this lead, Doctor McAlister changed the subject abruptly, Ashton dropped back in his chair with a little gesture of impatience.

For myself, the doctor's course puzzled me profoundly. That all this examination was a mere pretense, was, of course, obvious to me. We knew all about Jane Perkins, infinitely more about her than she knew about herself. We knew she had worn the cloak; knew that she, or the woman, rather, who had for a while inhabited her body, had actually murdered old Morgan. And if the object of the pretense were to keep Ashton amused, to make him believe that it was leading him to a possible solution of the mystery, then it had signally failed. Ashton was bored and rather disgusted. But it was not like my chief to fail, and certainly there was no look of defeat about his face. He was accomplishing something, I felt sure, though I could not even guess what that something was.

His next question seemed to me to be getting somewhat nearer the point, although it was the very one that made Ashton drop back in his chair with that gesture of impatience.

"Are your parents living, Jane?"

"No, sir. Neither of them."

"Have you lived in this country long?"

"Five or six years, sir."

"You're from New Zealand, or Australia, aren't you? You're not English?"

That question made Ashton sit up at any rate, that and the girl's answer to it.

"Wellington, New Zealand, sir. But how did you know?"

The answer had come instantly, but the next moment, with eyes perplexed, and with a vague gesture of her hands across them, she said:

"It's queer. It seems as if I had dreamed of talking to you about that."

"You knew, didn't you, Jane, that this Morgan who was murdered was a New Zealander? Oh, New Zealand has produced some great men. You're young, and I suppose you don't remember, perhaps have never ever heard of Bully Franklin and Josiah Haines. Old Morgan knew about them, though, I'll wager." He stood for a minute in silence, like one who tastes, in reminiscence, the flavor of an old story.

Then he pulled himself together and began asking the girl a series of rapid and, to me, rather meaningless questions. They were chiefly about Will Harvey, her acquaintance with him, how long ago it had begun and, in a general way, to what length of intimacy it had gone. The girl answered all these questions freely enough and with no appearance of hesitation.

"You knew he lived at Oak Ridge, didn't you," the doctor asked finally, "only two or three blocks from the house where Morgan was murdered?"

"You don't think he had anythin' to do with the murder, do you?" she asked. And then she laughed a little. "He wouldn't do nothin' of that kind, sir. He's just a silly."

"I'm inclined to think, Perkins," the doctor commented, "that that's a good diagnosis. I don't believe Will Harvey, even if he showed us every thought within that rather empty head of his, would ever take us very close to old Henry Morgan with his maps and his mysteries."

He turned away there rather sharply, his back to all of us; tossed his head back once or twice, with a gesture very familiar to me as characteristic of his periods of intense thought. Then, turning back, he spoke to Ashton.

"Did we tell you," he asked, "that Phelps and I discovered one map which your detectives had evidently overlooked, an odd sort of map, from a geographer's point of view, drawn on a very large scale? And the queer thing about it was, that it showed neither latitude nor longitude. There was nothing about it to indicate what part of the world it represented. I brought it away with me this morning. I'll show it to you presently if you care to look at it. It's there on the table in that big manila envelope."

"Wilkins! And by Thunder I Believe I've Got Him."

"I beg your pardon, sir"—it was Wilkins who spoke—"I wonder if you could spare me now, sir. I'm supposed to be in the dining room at this hour."

The capacity of a trained servitor like Wilkins for eliminating himself, transforming himself into a mere piece of furniture, is something extraordinary. He had sat through the whole examination with a countenance of the same wooden imperturbability that he always wore on duty in the dining room.

The doctor unfastened the long flexible wires by which he was harnessed to the instrument.

"I hope we haven't kept you too long, Wilkins," he said. "It was very good of you to come."

"Not at all, sir. Don't mention it, sir. Sorry I have to leave now."

"Well," said the doctor slowly, "I think we're about through, anyway. Jane here has been ill, and we mustn't keep her too long. I don't think of anything else I want to question you about, Jane. Thank you very much for helping us."

He removed the litle telephone that hung before the girl's lips, and slipped a dollar bill into her hand as he spoke. Then he turned to Wilkins, who had risen, still in his harness, and was scrutinizing, with amused curiosity, the portentously named instrument to which he had been attached.

The doctor, with a smile, was unstrapping the small recording instruments that were attached to his chest and wrists. "We're very much obliged," he said. "You've really helped us materially. His tone was low and confidential, not intended for the girl's ears. "I don't think she's any the worse for her examination, Wilkins," he concluded.

"Oh, no; likely not, sir. She looks a little pale, but I fancy that is no more than because the room is somewhat close."

"Is it?" asked the doctor.

"Well, it struck me so, sir. And I think, if you'll allow me, it might be well to have that ventilator cleaned. It is really very foul, sir. If you like, I'll speak to them in the office and have them send up a man tomorrow to do it."

He nodded, when he spoke of the ventilator, to a grated opening in the wall, and my eyes followed him. I didn't see anything wrong with it myself, but the man's eyes were evidently more practiced than mine.

The doctor fed him also, and liberally, and the next moment the head waiter and the chambermaid were out in the corridor and the door was closed behind them.

At the sound of that closing door, Ashton exploded, not with impatient anger, as I half expected he would, but with pure amusement. He laughed loud and long, and without the slightest effort to suppress his mirth. Doctor McAlister paid no attention, but let him enjoy his laugh undisturbed.

"Well," said the district attorney when he had got his breath, "I'm really very much obliged. After hearing so much about these psychological examinations, it's interesting to have been present at one."

The doctor nodded rather grimly. "It's not half as interesting as it will be in about five minutes," he said.

He was busy with the instruments on the table as he spoke. "Do you care to wait and see the results?" he added.

"Come—" said Ashton; "you don't really believe, do you, that you have found out anything, by some subtle, scientific process of yours, about that girl?"

"I know all about the girl already," said my chief. "But come, were you really taken in by the trick?"

"What trick?"

"Did you think, all the while, that it was the girl I was examining?"

A great light suddenly burst upon me, but Ashton was not so quick. His face went perfectly blank.

"Did I think it was the girl you were examining! What else could you have been doing? Who else was there to examine?"

"Wilkins!" said the doctor with a blow of his fist upon the table. "Wilkins! And, by thunder, I believe I have got him."

CHAPTER VIII

"Wilkins!" repeated Ashton. "What sort of farce is this?"

"If it turns out to be a farce," said the doctor, "it will be of your making. If I were clothed in your authority and know only what I know at this moment, I would go to that telephone and call in some trusty man to watch him; and if my guess survives the test to which I am about to put it, I should, within the next half hour, order his arrest."

He turned away too quickly to see the shrug of tolerant contempt which was all the answer Ashton vouchsafed to this suggestion. He unscrewed the megaphone which had been attached to the instrument to which Wilkins had been harnessed, and attached to it a pair of ear tubes to listen through, a glass tube which looked like a thermometer and another tube which terminated in a glass bulb, half full of a red liquid. He put the listening tubes to his ears and started the machine.

"Give Ashton a cigar, and don't let him talk," was his injunction to me.

For nearly a quarter of an hour after that there was silence in the room; but at last he stopped the cylinder which was revolving in the instrument, took the tubes from his ears and laid them on the table. Then he turned to us.

"I was right, Ashton," he said. "I know you want an explanation, and I'm going to give it; but if Wilkins is to be at large during the time it will take me to tell the story, I want the responsibility to be upon you, and not upon me. If I were in your place, I should order his arrest."

Rebuke to Emperor by Master of Music

At a concert in St. Petersburg, before a brilliant assemblage which included the czar and many members of his court, Franz Liszt was conducting a symphony. During the course of the music the czar began to converse in audible tones with one of his fair neighbors. In the very midst of the movement Liszt gave with his baton a signal for the music to cease, and the players stopped short.

The abrupt silence filled the audience with surprise, and the czar at once sent an equerry to ask for an explanation. Whereupon Liszt sent back word:

"When the czar speaks, all the rest must be silent."

As this was a court regulation, the czar had to suffer the rebuke of a foreign musician administered under the guise of obedience to court etiquette. Hanz von Bulow, in relating his father-in-law's unprecedented act of courage, says George S. Hellman, who tells the story in "Lanes of Memory," said that he would have given a year of his life to have had such an opportunity to teach an emperor that art must be respected.

Poor Lighting Puts Big Strain on Nerves

The average American home is only half lighted, asserts Miss Helen G. McKinlay of Harrison, N. J.

Miss McKinlay is one of a score of engineers and eye conservationists carrying on a nation-wide investigation of light, sight and safety under the direction of Richard E. Simpson of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America. She is studying the effect of inadequate lighting in the home.

Sufficient lights, all shaded, and a center light in each room are the essentials of a well-lighted home, declares Miss McKinlay. She sees no harm in reading in bed providing the light is good.

"It takes 12 per cent of the nervous energy the body generates to see under normal conditions," she explains. "When there is poor lighting 50 per cent is required.

"Every well-lighted kitchen should have lights above the sink. If you work and can't see well, your irritability is increased. Why lose so much nervous energy in the kitchen?"

Chance for a Record

Star runners, out for a world's record, should try the 880-yard run. That is the suggestion of Dr. Earle R. Hadrick, a mathematician of the University of California, in Popular Science Monthly.

From carefully prepared charts based on the limit of human endurance, as now established, he concludes that the record of one minute and fifty-two seconds for the 880 is the one most likely to be improved in the near future. It might be lowered a full five seconds and still be consistent with some of the other records now existing.

Detour

We have just been apprised of a taxi-driver whose fare, a gentleman slightly unsteady, gave the order to drive "to the end of the rainbow." The chauffeur was acquiescent—until he began to worry about the customer's ability to pay. Then he stopped the taxi, opened the door and said cheerily:

"Well, here we are!"

"Is this the end of the rainbow?" inquired the fare.

"Well, not quite, sir," was the ingenuous reply. "The end is really one block west, but the street's torn up and you'll have to get out here."—New Yorker.

Help for "Rickety" Babies

Dried milk that has been treated with ultra-violet light is the most practical of the irradiated foods that have been used to prevent rickets in babies, in the opinion of Dr. Alfred F. Hess, an authority on rickets. "It is the unanimous opinion that dried milk treated in this way prevents or cures infantile rickets and tetany," asserted Doctor Hess in a report to the American Medical association. "The specific gravity of the milk is maintained for a period of at least six weeks."

HELP FOR SICK WOMEN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Restored the Health of Thousands

Brooklyn, New York.—Mrs. G. Hegmann of 228 Schaeffer St., was in a run-down condition and could not do her housework. She could not sleep at night. Her story is not an unusual one. Thousands of women find themselves in a similar condition at some time in their lives. "I found your advertisement in my letter box," wrote Mrs. Hegmann, "and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got relief." Mrs. Hegmann also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation, with good results. She says, "I am recommending your medicines to all I know who have symptoms the same as mine, and to others whom I think it will help. You may use my statement as a testimonial, and I will answer any letters sent to me by women who would like information regarding your medicines."

There are women in your state—perhaps in your town—who have written letters similar to this one telling how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them.

The Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass., will gladly furnish other women with these names upon request.

Podigal Kitten Returns

Five years ago Tiddles, the nine-months-old kitten belonging to F. D. Davies of Farnham, England, disappeared. It was mourned for a while, then forgotten. Recently a hungry and tired black-and-white cat appeared at the door of the old home. It was not recognized until it finally did some of the tricks learned in kittenhood. Then Tiddles was given milk from the fatted cow.

NEED FOR CONSERVATION

Secretary Work of the Department of the Interior declares that the need for conserving our petroleum resources was never more apparent than today. He suggests the formation of a committee composed of representatives of the oil industry, the American Bar Association and the government to draft a conservative bill to be presented to the next Congress.

"At present oil is being produced on a scale never before reached," says Secretary Work. "A civil war of intense competition is today producing a waste problem in the oil industry so big that it is national in extent and interest. Unless the industry is able to co-operate, huge losses are inevitable."

He says that the chief cause of over-production is over-competition. To alleviate present conditions "constructive statesmanship is plainly needed, and the time is ripe for action."

LONG DISTANCE AND AIR SERVICE SAVE A FOOT

What modern methods of communication can accomplish was graphically illustrated a short time ago when a Corning, Cal., woman was informed that the only chance to avoid amputation of an infected foot was to reach a hospital within a few hours. Using the long distance telephone, she called up an air pilot at Klamath Falls, Oregon, who made the 200 mile flight to Corning in less than two hours, and then took the woman aboard and flew another 200 miles to San Francisco, arriving at the hospital in time to prevent amputation.

By this time most vacations and money have been spent.

ABOUT WOMEN

BANK OF ITALY NATIONAL TRUST & SAVINGS ASSOCIATION
California needs this great state-wide banking organization to finance its growing industries...

A FEW YEARS AGO important agricultural and commercial interests of California suffered periodically from a lack of timely financing. Millions of dollars were required at certain seasons of the year to move crops and sustain other big interests. Local institutions were often unable to supply credit facilities on a scale adequate for these purposes. The establishment of Bank of Italy's statewide organization has changed this situation. Now, 164 California communities may draw from a vast reservoir of capital—in sufficient amounts to meet their requirements. The Bank of Italy's statewide system has, year after year, proved itself to be a dependable stabilizing force in the agricultural and commercial fields.

VOLUME I FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1927 NUMBER 10

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

When a girl marries at this time of the year, she is called an Autumn bride. By the same token the groom must be the fall guy.

But the honeymoon is over when she fills the hot water bottle to keep her feet warm.

Weather is one of the great destroying influences, but good paint robs it of its power to damage your property.

Not all bed time stories are broadcasted.

When you think of building, think of H. H.

Ideals and ambitions are funny things—they won't work unless you do. The mere desire to own your home will get you nowhere unless you're able to do without a few things you want but don't particularly need. But, O, Man, to be able to build your own home is sure worth whatever sacrifices that are needed.
